We have not seen a few members for months since we've gone back to in-person meetings. We miss you! Renew your membership by contacting Linda Woodhouse at [lindawoodhouse Realtor@gmail.com](mailto:lindawoodhouse Realtor@gmail.com) or 954-234-4623 and participate in all the upcoming events this fall. Remember, for the price of membership ($20/single and $30/couple), each member gets a lovely orchid at the holiday party on Saturday, December 4. Additionally, we could certainly use your assistance at the 9th annual orchid show and sale, Orchid Obsession, on Saturday and Sunday, November 13-14, 2021, with set up on Friday, November 12.

We thoroughly enjoyed our speaker, Pam Waters from Orchids in Bloom, for the Tuesday, August 10, 2021, DBOS meeting. Pam brought a large variety of beautiful, well-grown orchids and many of us went home with several. Monthly meetings are held at 7:30 pm the second Tuesday of each month at the Woman's Club of Deerfield Beach.

Many of you know that my love of plants also includes a large variety of Hoya plants. My daughter and I have each had Hoyas for over 20 years and collected them before they became popular and pricey! They are incorporated into my landscape and used as outside curtains on my sliding glass doors. See page 10 in the newsletter for photos, find out a little more about Hoya growing, and to see some of the Hoyas that will be available at the auction.

Happy Orchiding!

September in Your Orchid Collection

By Dr. Martin Motes

September looms as the only truly dismal month in South Florida. Even without the prospect of the unspeakable 'H' word, September disheartens since it is easily the dampest, dullest month in the year. Although more inches of rain fall in June, more hours of rain occur in the often slow, seemingly endless drizzles of September. Frequently a day or two can pass without so much as a solid hour of truly bright sunshine to lift our spirits and dry out our plants. Days are growing much shorter also, with long nights when our plants are wet from the frequent rains. Coming at the end of the rainy season when disease pressure has been building, September presents the maximum opportunity for fungal and bacterial diseases to take hold of our orchids. Hopefully careful watering practices and the judicious use of fungicides (as recommended last month) will have diminished the potential for disease in our collections. But even in the best managed collection, September calls for extra vigilance. Keep a close eye out for problems and remove immediately any plant that shows the first sign of fungus to a dry location to prevent the disease being spread by splashing rain drops. Good hygiene is particularly important this month. Clean up growing areas and remove any dead leaves, twigs or other organic debris from the plants and the ground. In September numerous diseases that linger in decaying plant material find the ideal conditions that allow them to jump to the living tissue of our prize orchids. Such problems can develop more quickly in September than in any other month. September is a month to stay home and be there for your orchids. Look at every plant, every day.

September, above all, is the month that the old Florida growers' adage that "One needs a cat to grow good orchids," holds true. By leaving enough space between plants on a shade house bench for a cat to walk around without knocking them down, one provides the good air circulation which is absolutely essential in periods of protracted wet weather. Well spaced plants are much less likely to encounter disease problems this month. Remember that your plants will have grown considerably over the summer and that the space they occupied comfortably in the Spring has now been filled by their own growth as well as their neighbors. Space them out. Now is perhaps the time to decide to hang some of the larger ones where they will dry much more quickly. The small cute ones left behind on the bench will be very appreciative of the extra air and light.

Another excellent way to increase air circulation and enhance rapid drying is by trimming excess (particularly vertical) branches from all trees which support orchids or are near to orchid growing areas. By increasing the light and air flow one will also garner the benefit of reducing the possibility that such trees will be knocked down in a severe storm. Trees trimmed to permit proper air circulation and light for orchids were frequently the only ones which survived upright .....CONTINUED.....

HOYAS

By Cheryl Babcock

DBOS President

Hoyas have been a part of my collection, and my daughter's, for over 20 years, long before I had any orchids and long before they became popular and pricy as they are now. As a child, I remember my grandmother having Hoyas, which she called wax plants, out in a bright sunny room along with scores of African Violets. Hoyas are incorporated into my landscape as shown on some of the photos and used outside hanging in front of sliding glass doors in place of indoor blinds/curtains.

Hoya plants have such interesting foliage throughout the year, even when they aren't in bloom. They are a vine with thick, waxy leaves and clusters of magnificent small, star-shaped waxy flowers. Some have perfumed scents, including butterscotch! They like being pot bound and most of mine are in 4 to 6-inch pots with a porous, fast-draining soil mixture. Through the years, I've changed my potting mix and now incorporate perlite, charcoal, clay pebbles, and soil. They don't like wet feet and prefer bright, dappled light. Water them regularly when the top half of the soil feels dry to the touch. As for fertilizer, they get what the orchids get. Hoyas grow well with orchids and mine are grown side-by-side.

Hoya carnosa and Hoya publicaylyx are some of the most common species of Hoya plants and in the photos, you will see them climbing up some of my trees along with the Vanilla orchid. Many of them do vine and intertwine with one another and can easily climb on a trellis for support or anything they can grab onto.

Hoyas are relatively easy to grow from cuttings, and most of mine came from one single cutting. The DBOS auction on September 14 includes about 14 or 15 Hoya plants from my collection, with most of them having two or more cuttings in a 4-inch pot. Up for auction are the following: H. curtsii, H. compacta 'Hindu Rope', H. kentiana, H. lacunosa 'Tove', H. obscura, and H. Joy/Noelle. Going once! Going twice! Sold to the new owner of a delightful Hoya!

MEMBERS' PLANTS

DBOS members, please send images of some of your favorite images at any time to deerfieldorchids@gmail.com so we can share them with our membership. We all used to like to ooh! and aah! at our monthly meetings when we had our members' table and people brought in their blooming orchids to show. We often saw orchids that we put on our list of orchids to add to our collections. If we get enough of our members to submit photos each month, we can have a virtual orchid display. Please also continue to bring in your blooming orchids to our member's table for judging at our monthly meetings.

Nature's Relics Announcement !! Jessie and Dee Vance

After twelve years of selling "Old Growth Cypress Wood," we are formerly announcing the dissolving of our business. We always believed the old growth cypress is one of the best mounting mediums there is. Orchids grow in abundance on this wood in nature. The roots attach easily, and because of the natural preservative "cypresseine" in the wood, it is resistant to pest and rot.

The Deerfield Beach Orchid Society has always supported our business through the years, and is much appreciated. It has been a great pleasure to service you, and get to know many of you personally, but now it must come to an end. Currently in stock are large and small cypress mounts, a few designer wall pieces, and some garden accent pieces. We will continue working on the wood we have left until it is gone, so if you would like to visit our garden, please call us at 954-801-1139 or 954-829-1656.
